By becoming a member, you'll gain the power to make meaningful changes that not only reduce your environmental impact but save you money in the process. Start by taking a self-assessment on our user-friendly online portal, followed by a rigorous sustainability certification process. Once certified, you'll receive an eco-rating that will be promoted to travellers, OTA's, and BTA's, allowing you to showcase your commitment to sustainability. With Green Key Global, you can make a positive impact and lead the way towards a more sustainable future for all.

Why is being Green Key certified important?

By obtaining sustainability certification, hotels not only demonstrate their commitment to the environment but also validate their compliance with regulatory requirements. This establishes trust and confidence among guests, partners, and stakeholders, while also showcasing the hotel's dedication to sustainable practices. Sustainability certification is an essential component for any hotel looking to make a positive impact on the environment and establish itself as a responsible industry leader.

Keeping Staff Informed

Involving and informing staff is one of the most important ways to get your sustainability messaging and efforts across. A well-informed team will be able to assist in boosting sustainability initiatives, as well as promote your efforts to guests and answer any questions that may come up. Providing continuous sustainability-related education, training, and tasks to each member of the team is the best way to set your property up for long-term success.

Getting Every Department Involved

Having an informed team is a great first step, but finding ways to get every department involved in your sustainability efforts boost morale and increase overall sustainability at your property in a way guests will notice and appreciate. Green Key Global has curated day to day checklists for each department, showing tips and advise in how to optimize your efforts in every area of the hotel.
